Rev. Flagley and wife, rector of the Episcopal church at Cleveland, has been boarding at Dr. Stanley's for a couple of weeks. They left last Saturday morning for Knoxville, where he has temporary charge of the church in that city. He will remain there a week, after which he will return to his charge in Cleveland.

The spring of which we spoke a few weeks since, has been cleansed and is now in good order. A stone casement encircles it, and stone steps lead to the sparkling fluid. The lot in which the spring opens has been fenced in. We trust that in returning thanks for this improvement we express the wishes of the whole community.

By the urgent request of the board, Rev. D. McDonald withheld his farewell sermon on last Sabbath until later; also by numerous petitions he repeated the sermon on the topic, "children obey your parents." A large audience was present in the morning, supposing it would be his last sermon in the pulpit. They were, however, agreeably surprised by his further stay.

While at Brick Mill last Sabbath, Judge Houk was accosted by a citizen of that place who said "well, Judge, I never knewed that you was a profut afore. Last fall you told us that if Cleveland was elected, eggs would sell at 4 cents and butter at 5 cents. Now, Judge, I have sold my eggs at 4 cents and can't git nothing for my butter. Therefore, Judge, you air a profut."

Saturday morning, Frank Willard was driving a horse with a load of lumber down the hill on Central Avenue, when the lumber slipped forward and tickled the horse's leg. The horse not liking this and thinking that if he would run he would get out of the way, proceeded to do so. He ran a couple of hundred yards until the hill on Maine street became too much for him, and he then succumbed to the unremitting efforts of Mr. Willard to stop him.

Rev. Samuel Wilson delivered quite an interesting lecture to a large audience at the Academy on Wednesday evening. The subject of his discourse was Mexico and its people. Mr. Wilson was, as you all perhaps know, for some time a missionary to Mexico, and consequently understands to perfection the customs of her people, and made quite an interesting talk on the subject.—Spring City News.

On last Saturday, Wm. Hickey was driving Mr. W. C. Chumlea's fine team of horses home from the picnic at Cave Spring. While crossing the railroad near Mr. Jas. Goddard's residence, some thoughtless boys commenced hollering. The horses became frightened and ran away. They ran about a hundred yards, and one of them fell and kicked himself under the tongue of the wagon, thereby giving the inmates of the wagon opportunity to get out. The front end of the wagon bed was torn to pieces and the legs of both animals badly skinned, rendering one of them temporarily lame. This, we understand, is the extent of damages.

Better.

Col. A. J. Neff, senior editor of the TIMES, is recovering slowly from the effects of the poison. He is able to be about the house. Considerable time will be required to repair the injuries, but the attending physician thinks it will not be long before he is able to attend to business.

Found!

Geo. Allen Brown found on last Tuesday morning a wallet containing a sum of money. The owner can have the same by calling upon him, giving description and paying for this ad.

OBITUARY.

Written in memory of Myrtle Dyer, who died on the evening of July 22, 1885, at 9:30 P. M. The deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Dyer, who had been sick but a few days previous to her death. We were not looking for the cold hand of death to fall upon her when it did, but the ways of God are mysterious, and in the very midst of life we are in death. Alas! the angel of death has visited our home and took our little jewel from our home. Home now seems silent and lonely without her; we can not hear the patter of her little feet, or the prattle of her little tongue. It seems so hard to see her little rocking chair and play things idle. But God knows best and doeth all things well. She was a sweet child, with blue eyes always sparkling, with silken sunny hair. She always wanted to help in everything that was to do, although she was only 4 years 8 months 6 days old. She could not bear to leave her ma a few hours without kissing her good bye. The day she died she told Josie her little sister to feed Brit her little dog.

Oh! our darling little sister,
Over your silent grave we look,
While above you and around you,
The birds are singing in every nook.
Sleep, Myrtle, sleep, thy toils are over,
Well have we loved you,
But God loved you more,
He called you away to that bright happy shore.

Written by Jo. and ELLA DYER.

Time To Stop It.

It's too bad, Sir or Madam, but don't get frightened. Your hair is falling off—that's certain. A glance in the mirror, or an investigating committee of fingers tell the story. We won't discuss the possible cause. It is enough that Parker's Hair Balsam used now will prevent further destruction. Is your hair somewhat gray, too, and crisp? Alas, yes. The Balsam will give back the original color, softness and gloss. Not a dye, not oily, elegantly perfumed, a perfect dressing.

Gen. Sherman and the Seidlitz Powders.

[Cleveland Leader.]
When Gen. Sherman's army was at Goldsboro, N. C., Gen. Sherman made a visit to the headquarters of Gen. Howard. While there Gen. Sherman felt the need of a small draught of whisky to drive off the malarial effects of the climate on his system. Now, all of the officers of the army know of Gen. Howard's rigid temperance proclivities, and were strict in their respect for them. Gen. Sherman knew there was no whisky in Gen. Howard's quarters, and therefore did not mention his wants to Gen. Howard.

Presently Dr. John Moore, the medical director, came in and after a little conversation, Gen. Sherman gave him the wink and said: "Doctor, have you a seidlitz powder in your quarters?" The doctor answered that he had. Gen. Sherman spoke up and said: "Gen. Sherman, it is not necessary to go to the doctor's quarters. I have plenty of seidlitz powders here, and good ones, too; I will get you one." If there was anything in Gen. Howard's quarters that Gen. Sherman did not want, it was a seidlitz powder, and therefore he said to Gen. Howard: "Never mind, general! Give yourself no trouble." Howard was then getting the powder and glasses of water ready. "I will be going by Moore's quarters after awhile." Dr. Moore was a great wag, and quickly took in the situation and became a party to the joke on Gen. Sherman. He said to Gen. Sherman: "By the way, general, I don't think I have a seidlitz powder in my quarters, and you had better take the one Gen. Howard has." By this time Gen. Howard had the powder all ready for use, and handed the glasses to Gen. Sherman. Rather than offend toward by saying he meant whisky, he drank the foaming stuff down, much to his own disgust, to the satisfaction of Gen. Howard, and to the amusement of the staff.

For Old Theatre.

[Cor. Philadelphia Times.]
The projected removal of the medical museum from Ford's old theatre opens the question as to what will be done with the building after the change is made. Why not raise it to the ground and build an enduring monument to mark the spot where the fondest crime of the century was committed? Gallic bones were boiled and scraped and polished in this building, and his horrid skeleton articulated and hung up as a warning to future assassins. The autopsy on the remains of the second president who met a violent death, I think, held in this building. A piece of Booth's body is preserved in the museum, along with upwards of 20,000 specimens, illustrating the wounds and diseases of war. 170,000 books and pamphlets are scattered around its walls, all on the subject of medicine. It is truly a cramming place for young gentlemen who have just received their sheepskins, and I recommend the recent graduates to take a trip to Washington to see the greatest museum of the kind in the country. It would repay the visit, for it is said that "the library covers a wider field and is a better practical reference and working collection for medical purposes than either the National Library of France or the British Museum."
